ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a method and system for the generation of an application object repository from application framework metadata. In order to achieve this generation, application object repository is itself conceived as a 5   framework that may be extended through application repository framework metadata.